NOTES AND ABBREVIATIONS.

1. All names in Part II are arranged alphabetically, and where there are more than one of the same name they appear according to priority of service.

2. An asterisk (*) before a name indicates that the officer attained the rank of brigadier or major-general either by regular or brevet commission in the regular or volunteer forces.

3. Following the name of each officer will be found, first, the State or country where born, and, second, the State from which originally appointed, but when this appears only once it indicates the State whence appointed, the place of birth not being known.

4. Cadet M A in bold-face type indicates that the officer graduated at the United States Military Academy; the adjoining date when he entered that institution; the figure in parentheses his standing in the graduating class, and his first appointment the date of his graduation, except in the class of 1901, which was graduated February 18, and were commissioned in the Army to rank from February 2, 1901.

5. All data relating to appointments or commissions has been obtained from original records of the War Department, supplemented from other authentic sources, or supplied by living officers or the families of those deceased.

6. No record is herein given of appointments or commissions that were not accepted. Such as were declined, revoked, or canceled, and under which no service was rendered, have been omitted.

7. All commissions, appointments, promotions, casualties, etc., have been added or revised up to the time each page was put in type.

8. A work of this dimension, covering so long a period, although compiled and revised with the utmost care, will doubtless contain some errors or omissions, and the compiler will take it kindly to be informed of any that may be discovered.

PREFACE.

From the close of the revolutionary war to September, 1789, there was practically no United States Army. A regiment of infantry and a battalion of artillery—in all, about 700 officers and men—were retained at the close of the war to guard public stores and property and to occupy posts vacated by the British on the northwest boundaries of the United States. By act of Congress of June 3, 1784, it was resolved, "As it appears absolutely necessary to have 700 noncommissioned officers and men, properly officered, it is recommended to the following States, as most convenient to the posts shortly to be vacated by the British, to furnish from their militia: Connecticut, 165; New York, 165; New Jersey, 110; Pennsylvania, 260, to serve twelve months, unless sooner discharged."

The troops thus provided for were formed into a regiment, consisting of eight companies of infantry and two companies of artillery, under the command of Lieut. Col. Josiah Harmar.

By subsequent legislation slight changes were made in the number and organization of the troops, and the reenlistment of the 700 men engaged under the resolution of April 12, 1785, was authorized by Congress October 3, 1787. This force, then consisting of a battalion (four companies) of artillery and a regiment (eight companies) of infantry, was, by the act of September 29, 1789, "recognized to be the establishment for the troops in the service of the United States."

No appointments or commissions had been issued by the General Government, the officers holding their appointments from the States which had furnished the quota. The officers retained in service were all commissioned as of the United States Army from September 29, 1789.

Everything relating to the appointment of officers was destroyed by the burning of the War Department, November 9, 1800. It therefore became necessary, in order to supply the missing links, to search the Executive Journals of the United States Senate, pay accounts in the Treasury Department, old manuscript registers in the possession of families or descendants of deceased officers, etc. In brief, neither labor nor expense has been spared in securing the most reliable information possible in the effort to produce this compilation, in the hope that it may be a standard and reliable work of reference.

<sup>a</sup> From the date of General Washington's death, Dec. 14, 1799, to June 1, 1821, when General Brown assumed command, there was no general officer formally assigned to the permanent command of the Army. During this period direct control of the Army (except at irregular intervals from June, 1800, to Jan., 1812, when General Wilkinson exercised command) was exercised by the Secretary of War. In the above list, however, the name of the senior officer of the Army is given for each period specified from Dec., 1799 to June, 1821.

<sup>b</sup> General Scott left for Mexico Nov. 24, 1846, and from that date to May 11, 1849, he had no control of the Army not included in his own command. He was assigned to the command of the eastern division Aug. 31, 1848, and resumed command of the Army May 11, 1849.

The President of the United States is at all times the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy.
